Brad Holm, Commercial Litigation

Mr. Holm concentrates his practice in commercial litigation, with particular emphasis on construction, architect/engineer liability, and environmental matters. He has represented owners, engineers, general contractors, subcontractors, sureties, and insurance companies in construction and environmental litigation. For example, his recent experience includes a $19.1 million recovery against a national architectural firm and its insurers for design errors and omissions on a project in downtown Phoenix. He has handled bid protest cases on projects ranging in size from a few hundred thousand dollars to over $1.2 billion. Mr. Holm has also served as a mediator in several construction disputes. He represented the owner of a major-league sports franchise during construction of the team's ballpark.

In 1977, Brad was selected as the first Harry S. Truman Scholar from Utah and as an Edwin S. Hinckley Scholar. He graduated with honors from Brigham Young University Law School (J.D., cum laude 1981). Mr. Holm distinguished himself in the moot court program and served as a member of the Brigham Young University Law Review. He is admitted to practice before all state and federal courts in the states of Arizona and Utah, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth and Tenth Circuits, and the United States Supreme Court. He formerly served as a judge pro tem for Maricopa County Arizona Superior Court.

Mr. Holm is an adjunct professor of law at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law. He teaches eDiscovery. He was named to the 2011-13 Super Lawyers® list. He is a frequent lecturer on construction claims and disputes, eDiscovery, and bid protests. Brad Holm graduated summa cum laude from Brigham Young University (B. A., Political Science 1978).
